CSC Hosts CARF Survey Team:

- Cleveland Sight Center welcomed the CARF survey team to the agency this week. The surveyors included Sherri L. Turner, PHR, (Administrative Surveyor), Marcia L. Echavarria, MPH, MS Ed., CVRT, CLVT, (Program Surveyor) and Sharon Duke, MS, CRC, (Program Surveyor). CARF International is an independent, nonprofit accreditor of health and human services. Through accreditation, CARF assists service providers in improving the quality of their services, demonstrating value and meeting internationally recognized organizational and program standards. The accreditation process applies sets of standards to service areas and business practices during an on-site survey. Accreditation, however, is an ongoing process, signaling to the public that a service provider is committed to continuously improving services, encouraging feedback and serving the community. Accreditation also demonstrates a provider's commitment to enhance its performance, manage its risk and distinguish its service delivery. Survey results of this visit will be available to CSC in the coming months.

- From an online article: Diseases of the eye may profoundly influence artists by altering their perception of the world as each brushstroke provides a clue as to their interpretation of what they see around them. Throughout history, many famous artists have been known to struggle with vision impairment. Perhaps the most notable, and perhaps aligned period for vision impaired artists, was the Impressionist era as the art style that emerged during these years allowed for softer, ethereal adaptations of landscapes, figures and still life.
